

THE ORDER OF AUSTRALIA

NOMINATION FORM

The Australian honours system

The Australian honours system celebrates the outstanding achievements and contributions of extraordinary Australians in a diverse range of fields and areas of endeavour. It is about recognising those people in the community whose service and contributions have had the effect of making a significant difference to Australian life or, more broadly, to humanity at large.

The Australian honours system recognises the actions and achievements of people who go above and beyond what could be reasonably expected and, in doing so, encourages national aspirations and ideals of the highest community standards and values.

Recipients are people from all spheres of the community. Any individual, community organisation, professional body or similar group can nominate any living Australian citizen for an award.

In the Australian honours system the Order of Australia is the pre-eminent means of recognising outstanding achievement and contribution by Australians. It rewards people who have made a significant difference to their community, their country or at an international level.

The Order of Australia has four levels:

- Companion of the Order (AC)
 - for eminent achievement and merit of the highest degree in service to Australia or to humanity at large;
- Officer of the Order (AO)
 - for distinguished service of a high degree to Australia or to humanity at large;
- Member of the Order (AM)
 - for service in a particular locality or field of activity or to a particular group; and
- Medal of the Order (OAM)
 - for service worthy of particular recognition.

Nominations of Australian citizens for an award within the Order of Australia may be made by completing the attached nomination form.

Who can be nominated?

Any living Australian citizen can be nominated for an award within the Order of Australia. Any individual, community organisation, professional body or similar group can nominate someone for an award.

Appointments in the Order of Australia are not made posthumously. However, a nomination will be considered if the person is alive when the nomination form is received by the Australian Honours and Awards Secretariat.

How do you prepare a nomination?

When filling out the nomination form, it is important to provide specific examples of how the nominee's contribution(s) has been outstanding.

In addition to providing a list of appointments or positions held by the nominee, it is helpful to include examples that best show how the nominee has gone above and beyond what could be reasonably expected of someone in a similar position. In preparing the nomination, time should be devoted to considering why you think the nominee's service and achievements are outstanding and worthy of recognition through the Australian honours system.

How are nominations assessed?

The Council for the Order of Australia is an independent advisory body that meets twice yearly to consider all nominations and make recommendations to the Governor-General on who should receive awards in the Order of Australia. The Council also recommends the level of award.

The Council consists of 19 members from across Australia. These include a number of public office holders, representatives from each state and territory, and a range of community representatives who are appointed by the Governor-General on the recommendation of the Prime Minister. Its diversity means that the Council has a national perspective.

In considering nominations, the Council seeks to satisfy itself that the person concerned has:

- demonstrated achievement at a high level;
- made a contribution over and above what might be reasonably expected through paid employment; or
- whose voluntary contribution to the community stands out from others who may have also made a valuable contribution.

The degree and value of the contribution, rather than merely length of service, is the primary focus of the Council's consideration. After assessing the nominations, the Council recommends a list of recipients to the Governor-General for approval.

Is it necessary to provide referees?

Yes, the names and address of individuals who would be in a position to comment directly on the nominee's service should be provided. As a general guide, about four referees are required for each nomination.

Are nominations confidential?

All nominations are strictly confidential and the information provided will be used only to assist the Council in considering the merits of the nomination.

The person being nominated should not be approached for information or advised of his or her nomination at any stage.

How long does it take for nominations to be considered?

All nominations are processed in order of receipt by the Australian Honours and Awards Secretariat at Government House.

Following receipt, each nomination is thoroughly researched and referees are contacted. When all relevant information has been obtained, the nomination is submitted to the Council for consideration. This process can take 18 months to 2 years.

How are recipients told of their award?

Recipients are advised in writing of the offer of an award. The names of successful nominees are published twice a year, on Australia Day (26 January) and the day set aside in June to officially commemorate The Queen's Birthday.

Are nominators advised?

Nominators are advised of the outcome of their nomination approximately one week prior to the official publication of the Honours List for which the nomination was considered.
